HOW CHANGE HAPPENS

WHAT WILL INSPIRE YOU?

What began in 1972 as a free clinic in a church in Mill Valley has grown to a network of five clinics throughout Marin, serving more than 28,000 people per year. Marin Community Clinics has become a vital resource for the county.

Nancy Kelso had long recognized the need to bring medical care to a greater number of people in Marin—people who either couldn't afford insurance or didn't qualify for it. She turned to the Marin Community Foundation for advice. When she was connected with Marin Community Clinics, she knew she'd found the right organization. "They treat every patient with dignity and respect, regardless of their situation, and that's everything."

Nancy was inspired by Marin Community Clinics' mission to make quality health care accessible to all.
